While there are those who can be conned with the word HISTORIC, those who are not easily mesmerized with every shiny bauble, dangled in front of them, see what this GRC draft order really is...the ultimate bait and switch.

Oh, look, we reduced your BCS $.25/month, aren't we wonderful, additionally we reduced the ROE to 9.4%, now, its time to genuflect in our presence, we are magnificent, see, we care about you, the rate payers.

So while they are basking in saving this MERE amount, all the energy conservation/efficiency programs are going to eat that up that HUGE saving and place a higher financial burden upon the ratepayer. Especially since some of these WONDERFUL, SUBSIDIZED programs, are SUPPOSE to BENEFIT low income etc., Oh, PLEASE, the targeted demographic of these programs, are also paying for the programs, to help them save money, so, ultimately, they AREN'T benefiting from them!

If people believe that, I have a condo, in Carroll Gardens, on the eastern border of the Gowanus Canal, that you can, walk down to and obtain drinking water, while opening your windows and inhaling the odiferous, oops, I mean wonderful water ambience, for immediate sale and occupancy.

So will this BIG REDUCTION have a future impact upon your vig, oops, I mean Mill Tax?

Before you go around, patting yourselves on the back over this HISTORIC reduction, lets see the NET impact from all the extortion bill dockets, that still haven't been addressed, that will EASILY ABSORB this REDUCTION and INCREASE everyone's bill.

Tell me what you see, any time at all, its all to much, things we said today, tell me why, something, no reply, all together now, MISERY, wait, Help, the end!

Its distressing enough when people are put in positions without experience, but when they publicly come out and say the Beatles and U2 are used for philosophical insight, Houston we have a problem.

QUOTE:I mean we have lots of books in our house, and I guess I look sometimes to literature and authors and even music for points of reference sometimes when I'm trying to understand issues. I mean I look to the law as well, but when we get into areas of philosophy and things of that sort, I look to sometimes what I think are wise authors.

I consider Lennon and McCartney. I've put them in my own mind in that category. I'll put Bob Dylan up there too.

WOW, the Beatles, Bono are utility reg experts...

QUOTE: Sometimes in law school, when you're in there, there's fancy Latin phrases that are used that can sound very smart and intimidating, but when you peel away some of those, they're not too complicated concepts, and I just believe the more that people can understand the reasoning behind decisions, the less animosity, the less negativity in that we can have just a good, a dialogue of the goals to make Nevada the best state we can possibly be. We need to be able to have that kind of a conversation.

Yes, especially ONLY with people who are singers, and endorse/promote your HIDDEN agenda, right Joey? We can work it out? It's all too much, get back, run for your life, bad boy.

Q: All right, well when you write your tell-all, I'm sure it will be in there somewhere.

A: Other than what's most important to me is always to do what's right, and that I don't have any comment right now.

Well, do you want to know a secret, I want to tell you, I've got a feeling, you're a paperback writer, or a fool on the hill. (Created with Beatles song titles)
